1608 Sleepy Time

Passed 30 October 2014

Proposer: Liam McCafferty (Postgraduate Education Officer) Seconder: Yinbo Yu (Activities & Opportunities Officer)

Union Notes

- 1. As part of the consultation on the new Graduate Centre, a number of students have indicated to us that they want somewhere to take a nap on campus during the day
- 2. In the US, a James Madison University student interested in promoting sleep education and healthy sleep habits among students launched a "Nap Nook" at JMU.
- 3. The student wanted a catnap to be perceived as an energy booster rather than a last resort after endless hours of coursework, and she thought The Nap Nook was the ideal solution for JMU.
- 4. Dubbed "the world's first designated student napping centre in a university setting," The Nap Nook opened in the 2013 autumn semester to provide students with a place to recharge.
- 5. The "nook" is located in the "lower drum" of the Festival Conference & Student Centre (ie the SU building) at JMU where students can reserve a large bean bag for forty minutes.
- 6. The forty minute limit was chosen deliberately because of the benefits associated with light sleep as, according to The Nap Nook website, a power nap will wake students up without leaving them with the sluggish feelings experienced after a longer doze.

Union Believes

- 1. We should inform people about the dangers of sleep deprivation and the important qualities of sleep.
- 2. Sleep deprivation is associated with weight gain, depression and is a proven carcinogen, by suppressing melatonin and leading to immunodeficiencies.

Union Resolves

- To mandate the Management Committee to investigate the practicalities of introducing a bookable Nap Room within Union House as part of the 2015 redevelopment.
- 2. To trial a Nap Room where possible this academic year
