

health sciences fact sheet who?

the School of Health Sciences is the largest academic School at UEA, and together with the School of Medicine makes up roughly 25% of all students (and voters!)

demographics

health science students are more likely to be mature students, women+, carers, commuters, and in full-time employment than the UEA average. This often leaves them feeling excluded from Union activity - Think about how your manifesto includes them placements health science students spend half of their course doing placements in the NHS, which usually takes them off-campus. This can lead to isolation, especially for minority groups, and difficulty engaging with both academic and welfare support engagement

health science students engage less in SU activities, often because they're based off-campus, have longer days or don't see events as relevant to them - think about how your work could help overcome these barriers reach out to healthcare students and societies to run a better campaign!